Working with senior executives and emerging leaders in times of challenge and change, Cathy provides performance-based executive coaching and bespoke leadership programs to a diverse range of organisations throughout Australia. Her passion is to challenge and inspire leaders to be their best. Her focus is to create positive, sustainable change in leadership performance and organisational culture, by equipping leaders with the behaviours, mindsets and resilience to lead the organisation to the future.

Cathy coaches and facilitates leadership programs across a broad range of sectors including professional services, tertiary education, financial services and insurance, construction, mining services, the energy sector, health, and Queensland government.

An executive coach, program designer and facilitator with substantial experience in marketing strategy and executive recruitment, Cathy draws on a 30 year career with publicly-listed and large private companies to bring to her programs a deep understanding of building effective engagement within teams and with key stakeholders. This extensive experience informs her coaching approach to such key leadership challenges as initiating successful crucial conversations, building followership and team culture, creating individual accountability, managing time and priorities, building business, and exerting influence.

Cathy has held management roles in industrial sales and marketing with BHP Steel and in FMCG marketing with Johnson and Johnson Australia. During the 1990's, she established a consultancy specialising in business-to-business marketing for small to medium-sized service sector enterprises. Through years of experience in executive search and selection, Cathy has gained valuable insight into building organisational capability and resilience through cultivating others.

Internationally credentialed with the International Coach Federation, Cathy is also one of few coaches in Australia credentialed by global leadership pioneer Marshall Goldsmith in his Stakeholder-Centred Coaching methodology. She is accredited with Coach U and Corporate Coach U as one of Australia's few facilitators of the global program "Essential Conversations for Developing Others." Cathy is an accredited practitioner of Human Synergistics' Life Styles Inventory, the Hogan Assessment tools and The Leadership Circle profile.

A graduate of three degrees, Cathy has a Masters of Business Administration (Executive) with Dean's Honours, and Bachelor degrees in Economics and Arts, from the University of Queensland. She is also a Graduate of the Australian Institute of Company Directors course.

Cathy was a Board member of Anglicare Southern Queensland for 10 years and was Chair of the board for three and a half years until mid-2019. Anglicare SQ is a $200 million revenue not-for-profit organisation providing services for the aged and disadvantaged. She chaired the Audit and Risk Committee for three years.
